

Leyla, a horse in spirit, is Maiccu's personal teacher, but Leyla teaches something to all of us with her words of wisdom. When the student is ready, the teacher will appear, they say. In a way we all are both teachers and students; these two roles change place, continuously, often many times during one single day.

In this issue

1. Trust in the change
2. Words from Maiccu
3. An interview with the toad
4. Leyla's Legacy: Change
5. An interview with Bridget Pilloud
6. It is time to celebrate!

Contributors

- ✓ Maiccu Kostiainen, animal communicator
- ✓ Bridget Pilloud, animal communicator
- ✓ Olive, a pit bull
- ✓ Leyla, a horse in spirit
- ✓ A toad, words from the wild
- ✓ Lea Pihlman, editor

Leyla, a horse in spirit, talks about change in this issue. She will actually combine two themes in this and the next issue: change and trust.

The change fills our hearts with fear too often in life, even though things are very likely to be exactly as they are supposed to be, in every moment of life, no matter what.

Trusting the fact, that all is well, here and now, is not easy. It takes an open and receptive heart to receive all the possible lessons that life has to offer.

Everything that is, is energy. And the energy must flow: nothing is going to stop it; nothing can stop the change the never-ending flow of energy brings with it. The more we try to resist the change, the more painful life is. The choice between love and fear has to be made – once again.

In our last issue this year, the frog thinks that human beings are a bit funny. This frog really loves to be herself. It is unlikely that she would describe herself as ugly, if she ever saw her reflection in the water – as do so many human beings when they see their reflection in the mirror.

Many of us also think that the frogs are ugly. Maybe we humans look a bit ugly in the eyes of the frogs? Or just plain humorous? We'll see what Maiccu found out.

Lea Pihlman
28.12.2009

2

Words from Maiccu

Hello everyone!

When I am writing this, I am just recovering from of a nasty flu. I had a high fever, I tried to sleep and rest... but the sleep did not really come, my head was full of all kinds of thoughts... I have been aware of the fact that customers are waiting to hear back about the animal communication sessions with their pets and I want to get better to be able to be up and write for longer periods of time, to connect with your dear pets. One very special customer, if I may say so, has been waiting for me, and I thought that this moment is as good day as it can be to communicate with this customer.

Many of you might already know that there will be an interview of a toad in this PSW issue, and this is the moment. I am just as anxious as you are, dear readers, to hear what she says. During this fever of mine I have noticed some interesting things about my imagination and my state of consciousness, and I have seen unbelievable things and received various messages from Leyla, as well as some universal messages, which right now are impossible for me to define. I came to a conclusion, that the difference between the concrete reality and the imagination is like a line drawn in water. In a way, I don't even want to consider them as separated anymore.

There is a time and place for everything, and there was a hidden meaning in this flu I had, too. And I do believe that to make me slow down the pace and put me to rest, you really have to hit me half conscious. There is great wisdom in the silence, I really thought I knew that already, but I have to say once again, that I knew nothing yet.

I said to Lea, that I wish it could be possible to put an USB wire to my head and upload some of the pictures I saw to a computer. Unfortunately it's impossible and I can't even try to describe all this to you. I think it's best to move ahead to the mysterious world of frogs. Enjoy it! Here you have another wonderful package, many pages of straight talk, straight from the hearts of animals.

*Love
Maiccu Kostiainen
18.11.2009*

3

An interview with the toad

This toad suddenly appeared in the middle of the path and refused to move until a photo was taken. She lives in the archipelago of Southern Finland. The picture was taken a year ago.

The toad speaks:

"I'm sorry that I am a bit frosty. But you (Maiccu) had an excellent experience about how it feels when your brain is functioning but otherwise you are totally 'out of order', like you were frozen.

This is pretty much the best time of the year. This year was a very good year, it was not too dry and not too wet, and it was perfectly muddy for my taste. In this moment things are in perfect order, in the best possible way; I do not have to do a thing. I do not need to eat, I can just be.

I am asleep, but I haven't fallen into deep sleep yet. I fall asleep very slowly; it is like a sweet moment in the sun in the summer. There is no hurry at all and you just wait for the moment when you fall asleep. All the thoughts are like a free stream of consciousness, nothing is going to interrupt them or restrict them. Even though I am a frog – out of God's mercy – and I can sleep through the whole winter, it does not mean that I don't have any thoughts or big plans while at it.

You see, there are always many sides in things. If you knew how many, you would like to change places with me. You would come here, into this nest of mine and sleep through the winter. But this is not an option. If you wish to change places with somebody, you have to deal with everything which is involved and both sides have to have the same wish. So, you think: of course a frog would love to be a human being, why not. But I do not want to be a human being. I would never want to be a human being, not even if you paid me. And frankly, not a one human being would like to be a frog.

As usual, you would only pick the best part; in this case, you would just like to sleep the whole winter. And surely enough, after the winter you would just expect, once again, that somebody comes along and kisses you and you turn into a human being again, maybe even a prince! Yes, I have heard of this fairy tale. It is quite funny, actually. Every time a human sees a frog she thinks: is this frog going to turn into a prince, if I kissed it?

We frogs are proud creatures and you human beings amuse us. Quite many of you people look really funny in our eyes. Did the one who created a frog have a sense of humor? Yes he did, and he still has.

When I think about humans, I think the greatest amount of humor is put there. You do not have webbed feet; you are way too big and clumsy; you work hard all through the year – all in vain; you have weird clothes and you can't make it through one year with just one costume. As the matter of fact, you can't even make it through one day in the same costume. Anyway, it might sound odd to you, all this nonsense about princes and clothes and webbed feet.

As you understand, my thoughts are a one big stream of consciousness right now.

If you human beings wanted to quiet yourselves and get to know us frogs better, you would learn more about us and with that knowledge you would learn to value us more. We do not have a huge meaning in the big plans of the universe, we do exist just because there has to be diversity in the world and in one phase of the development of the universe, - to the level where it is today - we rose from the water with our webbed feet and we remained that way. We have humor in us, and that is more than enough for us.

---

Remember, that you can learn from the tiniest living creature, if that is what you choose to do.

---

You could learn a lot from us frogs, just like you could learn from all the animals. Remember, that you can learn from the tiniest living creature, if that is what you choose to do. Just look at us, we look somewhat weird and we live in the water and partially on the land and we sleep through the whole winter. We are not that different as you might first think. We love our children just as much as you do, even though we have hundreds of children, well, there is a little difference between us, but let's not cling to that. The important point is that there is plenty of love for every one of them.

I think it is quite honorable, that you wanted to interview me and hear what I wanted to say. I have no mindboggling teachings to give to you, but there is something I would like to leave you with.

Look at me next time you see me, I never want to scare you, or disgust you. I am just going along and minding my own business. I may not look pretty to you, but I would rather be a little humorous, than icky. I do not judge you, and that is why I wanted to tell you, that we frogs think that you are a bit funny. I am not dangerous in any way, I am just an innocent frog and I love life in all of its simplicity.

You should give yourselves a break and rest a little. Many of you, who live in the north, have a long and dark winter ahead of you, so relax. I am not going to die because of stress or overtiredness or heart attack, just because I did not rest enough. Hibernate, you are allowed to do that. You are still able to do what you are supposed to do, but you are able to save yourselves, you do know how to do it and why to do it.

Look at yourselves in the mirror and be amused and laugh at yourselves, do not be too serious about everything. We frogs are not

---

Who are you to judge the ways of other beings or the food they eat, when you do not even know who you are?

---

very serious. You people spend way too much time to excel others.

I am very aware of myself. I know who I am. You, human being, do you know who you are? Who are you to judge the ways of other beings or the food they eat, when you do not even know who you are?

Please, ponder that. And when you think that you have pondered about it enough, come and ask again for my opinion. I hope that I am still here to answer. I, you see, want to see the day when humans realize that they are no better than a frog!

I wish you a peaceful hibernation, sweet dreams and lots of love and new babies next summer! Sleep well!"

Maiccu Kostainen

4

Leyla's Legacy Change

The next thing we will be talking about is change. Leyla said to me earlier, that the theme will be change. I've had thousand and one questions in my mind ever since. For some reason I never wrote them down, I never had a chance, I was at the stable or in the car or something. But I decided that in this issue, if any of the questions pop into my mind in the middle of channeling, I'll ask Leyla immediately about it and then we know what happens next... I do all this with an open mind, once again, and as I get ready to write I do not know how Leyla wants to share this theme with us.

Leyla's presence has been very strong and I have been given validating signs all along, to show me, that she really is with me. I have felt really good about everything. After Leyla started to give me these messages, everything in life has fallen into place effortlessly and I have felt good in every sense of the word. It's like all the miseries and sorrows have been wiped away. Many times I have thought about writing a book and all that stuff, but then I have started to laugh and decided to leave all that to Leyla to sort out. It's like I have been given a great guide for myself and I can let things just happen as they unfold.

Little miracles happen every day. I hope that kind of wonders happen in your life as well, dear reader. You just have to listen to your heart and let things happen. But it feels like Leyla wants to continue from here. I may sit in front of this computer for couple of hours, so I make myself a cup of coffee and let Leyla speak.

Maiccu

Leyla speaks:

"Dear Friends, My Dear, we are going to talk about the change. As with letting go, also with change there are many nuances and many different situations. Lives of human beings or animals might change in many different ways. A change can be slow, but it can also be like a whiplash, fast. I could go back to letting go for a moment, and to the change that it brings into life. What happens after that, how can you move on with your life after you have faced such a big sorrow? When you lost me you asked; how to survive? At that moment my heart was so full of love and sadness, that you would have been able to touch it with your hand. You were right there beside me (Maiccu: At this point I have to make a little comment, I can hardly see the computer through my tears...) and I was near you all the time but you just could not see me. I wanted to shout out: I am here, I am near. But that was not meant to be. It was not how it was supposed to be, this was your path and something you have had to go through and understand. You were being prepared for that moment for one year, and yet it almost knocked you off your feet.

---

The size of the animal does not mean a thing: the amount of love is always constant.

---

Many of you can relate to this story, which is my story. It doesn't matter if it is a dog, a cat or a mouse. The size of the animal does not mean a thing: the amount of love is always constant. It is part of your profession to bring consolation to other people and animals. You help them in the middle of change. You surely had a little different idea about the change? Well, I do not have a need to talk about the change you experience in your workplaces or in your marriages. My job is to teach you and help you in the changes related to your animals and their lives. When you have to let go of your beloved ones and you are faced with the morning when everything in life has changed. The house is quiet and the familiar muzzle is not waiting in the stable anymore.

A question you could first ask from yourselves: what would your beloved want you to do next? You did ask that question and it was a huge relief for me, it is a good place to start with. So ask this from yourselves. How would your beloved pet want you to continue with your life? At that moment, it might be too difficult. Try not to force yourselves to do anything, there is no hurry, the right moment will come. I do not mean that you should have all the answers right away in this moment. You can let the things take their own time, but when you feel good about it, ask that question from yourselves. Be open to all the answers; listen to the sound of your heart. We talked about this in the last issue; you can always go back there.

After all these questions you have the right to love again, life should not come to an end. All the radical changes might feel like the end of the world, but that is not the case. All of us, you human beings included, stay on Earth precisely the time we were meant to be, and after that we move forward. You can ponder what the most difficult part in this change is for you. I can tell you one thing; you are not able to touch your beloved anymore. It is very difficult for you to accept the fact that life goes on, life goes on forever on the other side. We are beside you, even though you might not be able to see that first. Eventually you start to see signs, the more you ask for them, the more you also learn to see them, and the more you receive them.

This is the change. The change in life is like the change in death. Generally speaking, what is the change? How could you describe it? When something changes you realize that things are not as they used to be before. There is no better way to put it. For you the change can be like a little death, in everything you experience, also at work. You humans have a strong urge to play quite a drama every once and a while. It seems mostly amusing to me, so I do not wish to go there in these teachings of mine. But you surely understand what I mean. Understand that everything is always in the process of change. Things are never the same, not even for a one second. Time changes, one moment after another you move forward. If you think about it that way, it might be easier for you. All you ever have is this moment and the next can be something totally different.

That takes us to the next point of view. Love the change like it was your best friend. Love this moment like it was all you'll ever have, since there is nothing else. Love now, because tomorrow things might be different. I would like to teach you how important it is for you to learn to love in this moment and to love this moment, with all the good or bad it brings to your life. When everything changes, you are much stronger and you know that there is nothing to regret. You are so much in pain and feel guilty about things that take place in your lives. You can never stop time or turn the time back. It would be good for you to learn from every little thing that happens in your lives, from all the changes and all the big sorrows.

I want to tell you now, that from the other side we send you nothing but love, in its purest form. There is nothing else here. No guilt, no pain or agony; nothing bad. Here all is well, everything that ever was has been forgiven and only gratitude and love remains. It would be so much easier for you human beings to go through it all; change, letting go, sorrow and pain, if you could live in this moment without guilt.

---

Love this moment like it was all you'll ever have,
since there is nothing else.

---

All this you can change right now. I know that many of you think: I'll start tomorrow; tomorrow I will stop and begin to see everything in this moment. I'd like to leave you with a little homework. Change your lives, see this moment. What if the children are crying at your feet, the bills are not paid, you have run out of money, there are crises at work? What you should think about it? These are the things you are so desperately waiting to change, you wait, that everything would be better some day. Can you see any contradiction here? Once again, I say to you, I do not wish to judge or blame you, but look at yourselves. You want to take over the change. You want to be able to decide what sort of change you experience in life, what is good and what is bad. Remember, unfortunately you have no power to decide what the change will be like. You have only the power to decide how you react to that change.

I tell you, learn to love the change in everything in life, that way you will get much more changes that have positive effect on your lives. Every one of you has decided the way of life you lead, you have to take the responsibility for that. Maybe some of you can think, for the first time in your life, that you have the power to change which direction you go and how much you experience change. The effects the change brings are up to you and the way you think about it, that might confuse you, but it is something worth to think about. If this comes as a surprise for you, I am glad that it came up.

The change can be so radical, that it really stops you. That is meant to happen, if you experience that kind of a change. Learn among these changes. The meaning of these great changes is to change you and change the direction of your live. Without the change, when I came to here, to the other side, I never would have been here to tell you about these things in the first place. How huge and radical change it was to Maiccu, but she did keep on moving forward, slowly but surely. Sure about the fact that there is a purpose, and that in the middle of the biggest possible change you can see beauty and feel love.

I wish we all could learn about the change in an easy way, not in the hard way. I wish and want that the biggest lesson for you all what it comes to this theme, is that you do not need to regret, for example, if you were not able to love when you had a chance to do so. When you do not live your life to the fullest, when you are given the chance in this moment – in the one and only moment you ever have – makes you feel guilt and pain, makes you think useless questions and feel longing. Why not this and why not that? Love now, as much as you can, then you have nothing to regret.

You will still have plenty of questions and regret afterwards, I do know that.

---

Forgive and love.

---

I can see you think about the deeds you have done, all of those, which were not made out of love. You can regret as much as you like, but in the end, remember the gift of change, too. Accept it and change your direction. Do not make the same mistakes again. Forgive yourselves. There's plenty of change for you. Forgive and love. When your beloved one departs and the change crushes you, do not blame others, it is not the doctor's fault, it is not your fault, not neighbors fault, not stable manager's fault, not pet-sitter's fault or anybody's fault. It was meant to be. Take this gift into your heart and believe, that everything is exactly as it is meant to be.

The change is also love, to see that takes the wisdom of heart. As we come to an end, I give you the next theme. In the 4th issue of The Power of Silent Wisdom we will talk about trust.

---

Love now, as much as you can, then you have nothing to regret.

---

I love you, forever!"

Leyla

When I was writing this, I was listening to Michael Buble and I want to share one particular song with you. Somehow this song touched me and it was exactly what I needed, I was meant to hear it. If you want to listen to it, you can find it from YouTube, it is called "Lost".

I love you all too, my heart is full of trust in the future and I feel grateful for being able to share these words of Leyla with you and also this beautiful song.

Maiccu

Lost

I can't believe it's over
I watched the whole thing fall
And I never saw the writing that was on the wall
If I'd only knew
The days were slipping past
That the good things never last
That you were crying

Summer turned to winter
And the snow it turned to rain
And the rain turned into tears upon your face
I hardly recognize the girl you are today
And God I hope it's not too late
It's not too late

'Cause you are not alone
I'm always there with you
And we'll get lost together
Until the light comes pouring through
It's when you feel like you're done
And the darkness has won
Babe, you're not lost
When your world's crashing down
And you can't bear the cross
I said, babe, you're not lost

Life can show no mercy
It can tear your soul apart
It can make you feel like you've gone crazy but you're not
Things have seemed to change
There's one thing that's still the same
In my heart you have remained
And we can fly fly fly away

'Cause you are not alone
And I am there with you
And we'll get lost together
Until the light comes pouring through
It's when you feel like you're done
And the darkness has won
Babe, you're not lost
And the world's crashing down
And you can not bear the cross
I said, baby, you're not lost

Michael Buble

5

An interview with Bridget Pilloud

Bridget & Olive

Our guest is Bridget Pilloud from Portland, Oregon. She describes herself as: intuitive animal communicator, intuitive guidance counselor, writer, storyteller, podcaster & joyful noise. She says she loves to talk with animals of all kinds. She works by Skype and by phone with clients all over the world.

Her great-grandfather & great-grandmother moved to the US in 1905 from Norway. Bridget's family folklore is that one of her ancestors was one of King Oskar's hunting guides. Well, she's not sure if it's true, but they still say Skål at Christmas and they eat lutefisk in Bridget's home.

Bridget could make a living as a stand-up comedian any time, but I am glad she is also working as an animal communicator. Her dog, Olive is also contributing to this issue and says a few words. Even though her sleep was interrupted because of this interview...

When did you open your heart to the animals, and you received your first messages from them?

I think the first animal that I loved was my dog, Bailey. My family adopted him when I was sixteen. We had a dog and a cat before that, but I don't think I saw them as anything more than your typical family pet.

Bailey opened my heart. He was very loving and loyal to his family.

The first message I received from an animal happened when I was about six years old. My school had gone to the old zoo in my town to see the animals. We were trying to get the elk to come over to the fence to talk with us. Of course, the elk wanted nothing to do with us. Then, my friends got out their lunches and went to sit at a picnic table a ways away. The male elk came over to the fence, and leaned over and looked at me. He was huge and had a very large rack of horns. He breathed on my head and made this chuffing sound. I wasn't afraid. I just felt this sense of affection and warmth. I felt like he was okay with me, and I didn't understand why I was special.

I didn't hear an animal talk until many years later; that happened spontaneously, with a dog that I had recently adopted. She was going through a hard time and talked with me about it. I was quite shocked!

What is the most common reaction you get from strangers, when you tell them that you communicate with animals?

They're a little taken aback, I think. The ones that aren't familiar with it look at me to see if I'm kidding. I used to feel like I had to follow up with a comment like, "But I am, in every other way, completely normal!"

My family is Norwegian. I'm second and third generation Norwegian, meaning that my grandparents and great-grandparents came here in the early 1900's. My great-aunts would often tell jokes in Norwegian when I was a kid, and of course, I still eat lefse and krumkake.

I'm quite Norwegian in my personality too. I'm a little reserved. I like to give people their space. I am rather skeptical when it comes to things I don't understand, myself.

I talk with ease with animals whose everyday language is not English. I hear English. They are speaking Dutch, Finnish, Mandarin, Portuguese, the language of their environment. How does that translation occur?

So, when I meet people and talk about my work, I'm looking to see if they will understand me. If they do, great. If they have questions, that's fine too. If they don't believe me, I don't see the need to argue with them about it. They'll come to it when it is right for them.

What do your children think about the fact, that you are an animal communicator? Do they wish to learn it too?

I have two sons. Rubin is 19 and Ike is 12. They are both intuitive in their own ways, in different ways than me.

They would really like it if I could talk the cats into staying out of their rooms. Other than that, they don't really think about it very much.

The good thing is that they know that I can read energy really well, and it keeps them from doing anything too dangerous or naughty. They are a bit afraid that I will pick up on it.

Did the horse you talked with earlier this year really say the f-word, when he was so utterly pissed off about the fly mask which his human had put over his head? (I was rolling on the floor, laughing when I saw that tweet on Twitter.) [ "We horses got along fine for thousands of effing years without you humans and your effing fly masks!" ] Also earlier this year you noticed, that a horse who you were talking with, in a long distance session, could were on your desk. Were you surprised that some horses have such a vocabulary, and at the same time some other horses love to smell flower bouquets, even from the distance??!

Yes! He did! Every once in a while, I'll come across a swearing pet. They use it for emphasis mostly, though I've run across a few cats that swore like sailors!

I am not surprised that animals swear or use words that I don't use. Sometimes an animal uses a word that I don't know, and I have to go look it up!

It has made me think about language, though. We think that language is taught to us by our families, but what if some of it is just inherent?

Also, I talk with ease with animals whose everyday language is not English. I hear English. They are speaking Dutch, Finnish, Mandarin, Portuguese, the language of their environment. How does that translation occur?

Intuitive animals always surprise me. Not because they are intuitive. I mean, obviously they are intuitive if they find speaking intuitively to me to be so easy. But when they pick up on the animals that are in the room with me, or the flowers on my table or what I said to my sweetheart that morning, when they know things that I have no way of knowing how they know, it surprises me!

Some are more intuitive than others, just like people.

Do you think that life is really cool?

I think life is amazing. And I think it's hard sometimes. And I want it to be easier. I want us to learn our life lessons with ease and gratitude.

I asked Olive, my pit bull, about this, and she said that she was sleeping. Then I said, "Wake up, these nice people have a question for you. Do you think life is really cool?" Olive said, "I love fried things." She showed me bacon frying in a pan. She had some bacon this weekend. Then she also said that she thought it was too cold and she's worried that "the man will get me here." She showed me a shadowy figure outside.

This is what we work through with Olive, still. She had a very traumatic experience before she came to live with us, and she still carries her worries around. She's much better than she was.

She is safe in our home. She is safe with us, and yet she worries. We tell her that her life will not change, that she is safe with us, but she doesn't 100% believe us. Hopefully in time, she will.

She worries for my kids too. Whenever my son, Rubin, goes out she worries until he comes home. She's good at giving him the stink-eye if he stays out too late!

I wish we lived in a world where animals and people were safe, and didn't have to worry.

Leyla set the theme to "change" in this issue. How do you experience change in life?

Ah. Good Question! Change is constant. We are constantly changing! Life is constantly in flux. And change is scary for most of us. So there's this thread of worry that can be hard to ignore. I think our ancestors, who had very hard lives, worried a lot, and we carry that worry in our DNA. So to roll with change in ways that are comfortable, that's my goal. I want to handle change with grace, instead of being drawn kicking and screaming into the next thing.

Let me go ask Olive:

Olive says, "In my new life, I go hiking with my Dad, and I have cats, and I didn't have that before, so that's good. But I miss my first family and my rabbit, Conejo, sometimes. I like my new life. I like to curl up on the couch with my mom. Plus, I'm living this life when I'm awake and then I am living that other life when I sleep."

Olive shows me her sleeping at the center of a big wheel, and different scenes out at the end of each spoke.

"Sometimes I wake up and things have changed here. I go to sleep in the afternoon and I wake up and it's dinnertime and I remember where I am. That's good. I am happy when I wake up here, especially when it's dinner time."

Bridget Pilloud & Olive

6 A new year will be here soon. Some of us get ready to party while others sleep and hibernate deep under the snow or ground.

I want to thank our guest, Bridget Pilloud and her beautiful dog, Olive. Olive is one lucky dog, even though she might find it hard to believe that she has found her safe forever home!

The reason why we introduce animal communicators in every issue is that in this way we can show you that animal communicators – or pet psychics – are ordinary people, not some weird mediums who are superior to you in some way, doing something that nobody else is capable to do. This is not the case, even though many people still seem to think so.

Anybody can learn to communicate with animals, if that is what they wish to do. Many animal communication students learn the basic idea of it in one single weekend: after that all you need to do is to practice, practice, practice - and trust in yourself. We all have this ability inside us.

Joonas and Leyla were great teachers to Maiccu; perhaps you have some great four-legged teachers in your own home as well! You can communicate with animals, there is no question about that.

I will raise my glass to the first volume of The Power of Silent Wisdom this New Year. We started in the last quarter of the year, but the beginning was better than we ever could have dreamed of.

Thank you to all the animals who have contributed to this e-magazine, and thank you to those, who will contribute in the future. You know who you are. We have seen that the web of love between animals works just as well as our humble human equivalent: The Internet. Or even better...

We meet you again in 2010.

Leyla has said that she would like to answer to some questions from our readers about The Law of Attraction. That theme will most likely be in the 5th issue of PSW, 2/2010. If you wish to send questions to Maiccu (or me), you will see the e-mail addresses at the end of this issue. The law of attraction was explained quite thoroughly for example in the movie "The Secret". I'm sure many of you have already seen it.

PSSST.

I am an amateur translator and my English is not perfect. I do make sure you get the message exactly as it was said in Finnish, but I have no doubt that there are some errors. Sorry about that.

---

Happy New Year!

---

There will be time when we get someone to proofread these texts. There will be changes in the future. We wait for them and accept them with gratitude.

;o}

Lea Pihlman

Contact info & links:

Web Version of this issue can be found at <http://thepowerofsilentwisdom.wordpress.com/>
Both in Finnish and in English.

PSW has a fan page at Facebook:
<http://www.facebook.com/pages/The-Power-of-Silent-Wisdom/132586080908>
PSW at Twitter: <http://twitter.com/animalwisdom>

Contact Maiccu: maiccu@animalstalk.fi
Twitter: <http://twitter.com/maiccu>
Facebook: <http://www.facebook.com/maiccu.kostiainen>
AnimalsTalk.fi Fan Page at Facebook:
<http://www.facebook.com/pages/Paivola-Finland/Animals-Talk/155197685090>

Contact Lea: lumensilta@gmail.com
Twitter: <http://twitter.com/accode>
Facebook: <http://www.facebook.com/lumensilta>

See also:

Bridget Pilloud, Portland, Oregon
<http://www.bridgetpilloud.com/>
<http://www.petsaretalking.com/>
<http://bridgetpilloud.wordpress.com/>
<http://www.3bitchesbarking.com>
<http://www.olivesheroes.com/>

Bridget at Twitter:
<http://twitter.com/petsaretalking>
The tweet about F-word that came straight from the horse's mouth:
<http://twitter.com/petsaretalking/statuses/2504609697>

Treeshrew wants some peace of you.